| Report Accompanying Census Statistics for 1852 Contra Costa County, J. J. Woodruff Ag't.   |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| The County of Contra Costa is emphatically an agricultural and grazing County, as the Statistics in Schedule No. 2 distinctly show, although its resources are as yet in the infancy of development; this is not a mining County, there does not exist, or at least they have not yet been discovered, either gold bearing quartz, or Placer diggings; The ranges of hills intersecting the County, contain silver ore, in the form of a sulphuret of silver, also gold bearing stones, but in both cases, the proportion of metal is too small for profitable working; Some stone of excellent quality, is found in several parts of the County, and in one place Gypsum; but it is not ascertained if it exists in quantity; there has been lately discovered an excellent building stone, & red fire stone; |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| Sulphur Springs are found in several different localities, they are I believe mostly tepid, I have known that are actually hot, there are likewise saline springs, I think salts of Soda, but none of actual Salt, (Chloride of Sodium) have yet been discovered;  |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| The streams of this County are small and with very few exceptions, do not run through their entire course in the latter part of the dry season; there are no navigable streams, the country is well supplied from small springs, & with water for cattle, and all ordinary purposes; excepting the San Joaquin Plains;   |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| The small streams are named as follows:San Ramon, Ingoto, Mirces, Nambor, Pineda, Mantable, San Leandro, San Joaquin, Alameda, Vallecito, La Laguna  |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| Mining localities there are none, the region of Monte Diablo, which doubtless affords an excellent, the ores above mentioned are found in the ranges of hills which entirely intersect the County, running from S. to N. E. Under the head of towns & villages, are the County town of Martinez, the town of Colma, and the settlement called Sutterville; for the rest the agricultural population are widely scattered, and the localities are known by the names of the respective Ranches on which they are found;   |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| The Bolinas, a Monte Diablo is the only remarkable mountainous range, in the County, and from its height is conspicuous at a considerable distance   |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
| The water communication from this County, to the markets, where I believe, are excellent, in this respect it has no competitor in California; the bays of San Francisco, S. Pablo, Pineda, Strait of Carquinez, and the San Joaquin wash three sides of the County, and under access to navigable waters very easy, from almost every part; the County is rapidly filling up, & the preparations for farming the coming year, are very large, large quantities of wheat will be raised, the facilities for transportation, greatly increasing, and directly tending, to make this a most extensive grain growing, & Potato growing County.   |               |              |                     |                   |                    |                 |                  |                   |                      |                            |                                      |                      |                                    |                                    |  |   |
